

Selcom Limited is focused electronic systems provider. Selcom designs and develops state-of-the-art communications systems, products, applications and electronics. The company participates in design, development, production and research projects.

Technology is of value only when put to good use. Through innovative product design and development, Selcom explores the full potential of ideas and translates them into commercial products.

Selcom and its previous consolidation companies, have a proven track record of good products designed and developed over 7-year specifically under Thuraya satellite and under GSM/GPRS networks.

Selcom is represented in Europe and the Middle East with a prime focus on producing cost effective hardware and software solutions utilizing advanced communications platforms. Their newer product speaks for itself when it is “sort for” even before its production. The team of developers is focused professionals having worked on satellite technology ardently from the beginning.
